Orientation Announcements

- Imagine the scene:
 - Orientation for the new school year
 - Classroom packed with parents
 - A staff member announces:

Orientation Announcements

Your child is now an adult, ready to begin college. We often get calls from parents asking us to tell you about their grades, roommate troubles, conduct problems and counseling status.

FERPA protects all of there records. We can't tell you anything, so don't ask...

Orientation Announcements

Mistake One:

FERPA protects students educational records from third parties. It is designed to help the student maintain privacy.

FERPA is not in place to drive a wedge between the student and parent.

Separating Parents

- Parents on one side; students on the other

Separating Parents

- Each of the laws and regulations we are going to talk about today have exceptions to allow communication between administrators and parents.
- None of these regulations were designed with the intention of excluding parents and hamstringing educators.

Orientation Announcements

Mistake Two:

There are many exceptions and ways for educators to communicate with parents while respecting the developmental growth of the student.

FERPA, HIPAA, ADA and state confidentiality laws each have ways to communicate

HIPAA Entity & FERPA Medical

- HIPAA only applies if you are submitting electronic bills for health care to a third party.
- Most schools don't do this.

Is a person, business, or agency a covered health care provider?

HIPAA Entity & FERPA Medical

Mistake Three:

HIPAA rarely applies.

If you are a covered entity, there is an emergency exemption.

HIPAA Entity & FERPA Medical

Mistake Four:

FERPA does not cover counseling or medical record treatment notes.

Period.

They are covered by state law.

(the only exception is when they are released and included in conduct or BIT/TAT records)

Crisis Notification

Mistake Five:

*Not sharing information in a crisis event
to keep a student safe because of FERPA or HIPAA*

Crisis Notification

- FERPA

- FERPA's health or safety emergency provision permits such disclosures, without the consent of the parent or eligible student, if necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals. See 34 CFR §§ 99.31(a)(10) and 99.36.
- “articulable and significant threat.”

Crisis Notification

- HIPAA

- “Covered entities may disclose protected health information that they believe is necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to a person or the public, when such disclosure is made to someone they believe can prevent or lessen the threat (including the target of the threat).”
- “Minimum necessary” use and disclosure.

BIT/TAT

Mistake Six:

Not sharing information with the BIT/TAT because we are prevented by HIPAA, FERPA, ADA or state confidentiality laws.

Active Client

Mistake Seven:

A professor shares with a campus nurse that a student may be at risk for suicide. The nurse doesn't report this to anyone because of confidentiality.

A student comes to a counselor who is teaching a class and tells them about a suicidal friend.

Record Requests

Mistake Eight:

A student requests their record from counseling. The center copies his entire chart and gives it to him.

Don't over release...

- 1) Summary*
- 2) Do no harm*

ADA Avoidance

- There can be a temptation to avoid the ADA office with hopes that all the paperwork and hassle can just be dealt with through a one time accommodations “off the record” with the professor.

ADA

Mistake Nine:

Once accommodated, required to keep it up

No review process or evaluation

Creates tension with other professors

Outside BIT/TAT reporting

Accommodations

Mistake Ten:

Consider “reasonable accommodations”

We can be too helpful:

- companion animals vs. service animals
- cutting in class
- delusions
